

Collect up to 50* AIR MILES® reward miles
www.park2go.ca

INSIDE TODAY:

Motoring memories
 Merry England's the place for vintage autophiles
 See Page F8

Tokyo in two days
 A 48-hour itinerary in the Manhattan of the Far East
 See Page F5

FLIGHT CENTRE Unbeatable

Cancun 7 Nights 4-Star
 from $497
 * taxes & fees $270
 UPGRADE to 4.5-star Riviera Maya accom from $15 per night.
 Conditions apply, see main ad for details.
1 888 967 5360

TRAVEL

LATEST NEWS AT CALGARYHERALD.COM/TRAVEL

EDITOR: LISA MONFORTON 403-235-7428 LMONFORTON@THEHERALD.CANWEST.COM

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 2009

TRAVEL NOTES

Hotel will be out of this world

WHAT'S NEXT • A company behind plans to open the first hotel in space says it is on target to accept its first paying guests in 2012 despite critics questioning the investment and time frame for the multibillion dollar project.

The Barcelona-based architects of The Galactic Suite Space Resort say it will cost $4.4 million US for a three-night stay at the hotel, with this price including an eight-week training course on a tropical island.

During their stay, guests would see the sun rise 15 times a day and travel around the world every 80 minutes. They would wear Velcro suits so they can crawl around their pod rooms by sticking themselves to the walls like Spider-Man.

Galactic Suite Ltd's CEO Xavier Claramunt, a former aerospace engineer, said the project will put his company (<http://www.galacticsuite.com>) at the forefront of an infant industry with a huge future, and he forecast that space travel will become common in the future.

"It's very normal to think that your children, possibly within 15 years, could spend a weekend in space," he told Reuters Television.

British tycoon Richard Branson's space tours firm, Virgin Galactic, will use the facility to propel tourists into suborbital space at a cost of $200,000 a ride.

— Reuters

Go take a hike

ONLINE • You could use Twitter or Facebook to ask friends for hiking and biking recommendations — but then you'd have to wait for a response. Check in with Trails.SierraClub.org to find a trail or share a favourite of your own.

Here's how it works: "Find a Trail" does just what it says, but I found it much easier to browse this site (which is still being developed and focuses on the United States, for now) by states instead of getting specific in a keyword search. For example, rather than look for easy hikes in Los Angeles, search California trails. You'll get 195 results, including Aliso Creek Trail and Bikeway in south Orange County, Big Bend Trail in Laguna Beach and Bridge to Nowhere in Angeles National Forest.

The Trails website takes you to the Sierra Club website, which offers plenty of outdoors-related content and activity options.

— Jen Leo

Herald Archive

Michael Gottschalk, AFP/Getty Images

Participants in the so-called "Trabi-Safari" drive vintage East German Trabant cars past a piece of the Berlin Wall, much of which came down in 1989. The Trabi-Safari offers a tour called "the wall ride," to Berlin's historic sites.

20 YEARS AFTER

Nostalgia for Communism lingers in Berlin

GARY A. WARNER
 MCCLATCHY NEWSPAPERS

Twenty years ago, I was a bearded little Dorothy going through a Wizard of Oz moment, only in reverse.

In October 1989 I passed through Checkpoint Charlie and stepped from the Technicolor world of West Berlin, with its blue neon theatre signs, bright shop windows and teens with spiky blue hair, into East Berlin.

After running the gauntlet in the East German border station where my copy of Newsweek was confiscated, I walked into a world that seemed to have suddenly gone black and white.

Wide but nearly empty streets were hung with banners celebrating 40 years of the German Democratic Republic. The few shops that weren't shuttered sold metallic-tasting beer or stale, soapy chocolate. Everyone I met was testy or glum. A post-Second World War-era treaty required that westerners be allowed to visit East Berlin, but the government didn't like it. The citizens knew that with 91,000 agents and countless informers, the Stasi secret police were likely watching all interactions. After five hours, I was glad to get back to the West.

I took the Cold War for granted. I was born in 1958, with the confrontation more than a decade old.

ALSO SEE
 ■ Best sites in Berlin to see vestiges of Communism. F4

Now here I was, 30 years later, a reporter on patrol with the Berlin brigade, the U.S. army unit that roared along the length of the Berlin Wall each day in full combat gear, M-60 machine-guns mounted atop their Humvees. We'd stop at aging wooden platforms to scamper up for a look across the Wall. Our guys with binoculars looking at their guys with binoculars. The Wall was slathered along its western side with brilliant swirls of abstract artwork amid the copious graffiti.

SEE BERLIN, PAGE F2

Andreas Rentz, Getty Images
 A souvenir photo display at Checkpoint Charlie in Berlin, popular with tourists.

Gerard Malie, AFP/Getty Images

East German border guards relax on Nov. 11, 1989, after demolishing a section of the Berlin Wall to open a new crossing point, near the Potsdamer Square. Some portions of the wall still stand, covered in works of art and graffiti.

"All in all today is much better because now it can get better. Someday."

GUIDO WEISS

LISA MONFORTON
 DEPARTURES

Foreign flings: a tale of caution

For any woman who fantasizes about meeting her soulmate on holiday, you might want to first talk to Wanda St. Hilaire.

She's something of an expert on the subject — only because she's been burned on more than one occasion. Her weak spot? Latin men — especially smooth-talking Cuban men who can dance.

The Calgary author's CV traverses the minefield of love-gone-wrong in foreign countries. It's all there in her first travel memoir, The Cuban Chronicles: A True Tale of Rascals, Rogues and Romance. She calls it a cautionary tale for women around the world.

The Cuban Chronicles is a departure for St. Hilaire, 48, whose previous published works have been mainly gift books and poetry. A self-confessed romantic, she prefers solo trips because she doesn't want to "follow anyone else's agenda." That allows her to enjoy what she loves most — absorbing a new culture through cooking or language classes, and getting to know the locals. Sometimes intimately.

But her romantic impulses have gotten her into some tense situations.

"I've always wanted to write a travel memoir," says St. Hilaire, who has travelled alone almost exclusively. She has visited Mexico 25 times and lived there for two winters, among her other travels.

Two back-to-back trips to Cuba in late 2006 and early 2007, which led to an entanglement with a Cuban man, stirred her to write this very personal and meaty — sometimes messy — tale.

"I wanted to tell the whole truth. It took me a while to get up the courage."

SEE FLINGS, PAGE F2

Courtesy, Wanda St. Hilaire
 The Cuban Chronicles is an adventure in finding love.

Experience the Difference

Experience Elite Service and enjoy complimentary:
 Bon Voyage Glass of champagne • Choice of hot meals • Wine with hot meals • Soft drinks • Snacks • Hot towel service • Leather Seating • Pillows • In-flight, first run movies • Headsets • Kids backpack with games & toys • Courteous & friendly service

5,000 CHAMPAGNE vacations at $698

PER PERSON - PLUS TAXES OF $211 - $280

DEPARTURES: NOV 07, 2009 ONWARDS - BOOK BY NOV 20, 2009 | APPLICABLE TO SELECT CUBA & MEXICO VACATION PACKAGES

Calgary departures. Limited time offer applicable to departures from Dec 20/09 onwards. Sunwing has allocated 5,000 vacations nationally to a selection of destinations and hotels to be sold at $698 per person, based on double occupancy for a one week, "All Inclusive" vacation packages unless otherwise stated. $698 rate is applicable to Embarcadero Pacific Hotel & Villas in Puerto Vallarta, Mexico for Jan 7, 14 & 21 departures. All transportation fees and taxes of $280 are extra and must be pre-paid. Taxes vary from $211 to $280 for other destinations. Other holidays at this rate are also available for select hotels and travel dates. The offer is for new bookings only and is subject to change or to be withdrawn without notice and is not applicable for group bookings or in conjunction with any other consumer special offer. Flights are on Sunwing Airlines. For full terms and conditions, please refer to the Sunwing Vacations 2009/10 brochure. 1020 - 1500 West Georgia St. Vancouver, BC B6C4A Reg # 39606 Nov 07/09

Your Vacation Specialists

Book online or call
1-888-685-6888

Receive $100* for everyday it rains on your vacation!

*Based on $100 per couple. Valid for specific dates & destinations. Rules & restrictions apply. See escapes.ca for complete details.

David Gannon, AFP/Getty Images
A performing artist dressed as a U.S. military police officer takes a photo of a group of tourists at Checkpoint Charlie in Berlin earlier this summer.

FROM PAGE F1

BERLIN: Symbols of past souvenirs

From the platform, I could see the other side of the Wall. It was grey white, followed by a strip of pointed rocks, then barbed wire, guard towers, floodlights and another wall. The army guys on patrol called it the Death Strip. The Iron Curtain that stretched across Europe had its thickest, tallest, razor-wire-strewn stretch cutting through the heart of Berlin. Weeks later, it all crumbled. Alexanderplatz (a large public square in the city centre) filled with protesters. The Wall came down. East Berliners spilled into West Berlin. Demonstrators stormed the headquarters of the Stasi, the once-dreaded secret police. The empty husk of the Communist government teetered, then signed on to a humiliating reunification plan. Soviet troops withdrew. A dark, nasty but thankfully short period of Berlin's history was over. Unfortunately, I was back in southern California when the Wall was breached. I've returned many times in the past 20 years, watched as the bulldozers swept away nearly all traces of the Wall, cranes built mirror-clad skyscrapers around Potsdamer Platz, and Starbucks opened just up the street from the Russian Embassy. First there was exuberance, a desire to dump anything remotely connected with East Berlin. But as the promise of the early years gave way to cold realities, a backlash developed against the clean, corporate capital being thrown up by civic boosters. The disappointment has taken the odd form of "Ostalgie," a nostalgia for the Communist days of East Berlin (ost means east in German). Not a longing for the Wall, the Soviet occupiers, the secret police, the shootings of demonstrators, the decades of lost promise. But a reaction to the unravelling of the world East Berliners had known. They painted in their minds a memory of a more stable and egalitarian past, where everyone had a job and everyone was poor (except for the party elite). Where families stayed close because travel wasn't an option. A time where clubs — chess, sports, youth, even nudist — were the places to make friends. Where every smart kid who didn't mouth off against the government could go to college. Before the raw

Berlin comes to Calgary

Check out a commemorative photo exhibit of compelling images from the fall of the Berlin Wall at the University of Calgary. From the Peaceful Revolution to German Unity is an exhibition of the significant event that reunited East and West Germany. It runs from Monday until Dec. 8, 8:30 to 4:30 p.m. daily. The exhibit is in Craigie Hall D100 (The Fine Arts Deanery at the U of C.) An opening reception will be held at 7 p.m. on Monday. From Tuesday to Nov. 24, a series of postwar German films will also be shown in the Language Resource Centre, Craigie Hall.

competition of capitalism swelled the unemployment rolls, split marriages, sent children to work in distant countries, and western products pushed out familiar inferior brands.

For North Americans, the Ostalgie bent is hard to understand. It would be unthinkable — actually against the law — to have Nazi symbols and artifacts sold as sweatshirts and coffee mugs. Yet hats with red stars and T-shirts emblazoned with the hammer and compass of the old DDR, are sold everywhere.

The Nazis had been defeated, while East Germany simply faded away.

East Berliners wanted the dictators and occupiers gone, but they didn't figure on the political, cultural and social submersion of the East by the West. Many Germans are uncomfortable with it — Der Spiegel, a top magazine, tried to declare Ostalgie as "dead" in 2006, before the worldwide recession rekindled the old sore points.

Most of all, Ostalgie is a cult of symbols — many of which have become heavily marketed kitsch for sale to tourists. Tops is the Ampelmannchen — "little traffic light man" — the jaunty green man with a hat that was the "walk" sign at East German intersections. Along with his red brother signifying "don't walk," they were among the first symbols of the regime learned by children. Early attempts to convert intersections to western-style walk and don't walk symbols were met with stiff resistance. Ampelmann, a string of boutiques, shops and restaurants, has opened across Berlin, and the symbols are highly sought souvenirs now on T-shirts, refrigerator magnets and coasters.

The smoke-belching Trabant sedan, with its noisy, two-cylinder engine, has become a collector's item, spawning car clubs that gather with their Cold War clunkers by the scores, and used by the likes of rock band U2 as a symbol of cool.

Former East Berliners have battled to save Communist statues and street names (Germans yes, Soviets no) in parks and neighbourhoods throughout the city.

One statue of Marx and Engels, briefly endangered with eviction from its spot near the Berliner Dom cathedral, is now a national heritage site.

These are all tiny victories against a tide of change that has swept away familiar neighbourhoods. Downtrodden Mitte is once again the city's government centre. The workers districts of Prenzlauer Berg and Wedding, which only a decade ago still had buildings marked by shell holes from the war, have been gentrified.

Berlin has always been a chameleon city, taking on whatever role history wanted of it. Prussian citadel, imperial seat, Weimar's sensual playground, Hitler's Germania, target for American bombers and Red Army troops, capital of the German Democratic Republic.

While holding tight to some of its symbols and ready to label anyone wessie or ossie (meaning originally from western or eastern Berlin), many former citizens of East Berlin say looking backward has its limits.

Guido Weiss, 38, grew up in Communist East Berlin. But he has lived more than half his life in the "new" Germany. For his parents' generation there is some regret, lingering Ostalgie, for the old days.

They are the ones, as commentators have noted, who have replaced the Wall in the streets with one in their heads.

But for Weiss, it is different. A delivery driver, he's angry over 14 per cent unemployment, westerners buying up eastern properties, and the failure of the post-unification boom to materialize. But he has no desire to turn the clock back.

"All in all, today is much better," he said, "because now it can get better. Someday."

FLINGS: Use intuition

FROM F1

St. Hillaire is frank about her passionate side and her vulnerabilities, especially when Latin men are concerned.

"Cubans don't think of age. In Cuba, women date young men and vice versa. It makes it very appealing for a single woman," she says at a coffee shop on Calgary's 4th Street, where everyone knows her because that's where she does a lot of her writing.

The Cuban Chronicles is an uncensored, caper-filled journey, and at times a lusty read, as St. Hillaire navigates her ill-fated relationship with Paulo (not his real name), a smart and charming Cuban journalist who is bent on marrying her. Though she repeatedly tells him she's only interested in a just a fling, he has other ideas, like wanting her to meet his mother and sister, among other demands, long-term and financial.

Before this most recent trip, on which the book is based, St. Hillaire had imposed a 20-year travel ban to Cuba on herself, after having gone to the island during its nascent days of tourism. The reason for the prohibition, she boils down to four words: "I love Latin men." She warily lifted her Cuban prohibition after a trip to Oaxaca, Mexico, got cancelled because of political problems there. And so, St. Hillaire waded back into the Cuban lair.

This, despite the fact that she'd seen first-hand a number of her friends who'd fallen for Cuban men, brought them to Canada and married them, only to see all the relationships — except one — fail.

"You get caught up in the climate, the music the sensuality. It makes it all very appealing for a single woman."

Woven throughout the story of the relationship, St. Hillaire tries gracefully to extricate herself from, are her frank and sometimes raw everyday insights into the lives of Cubans and the hardships and poverty they endure.

St. Hillaire's story has some tense moments that include having to be rescued by the owners of an inn from her would-be lover's tenacious pursuit. There's also plenty of humour, but mostly self-discovery.

At the same time, her story is about a woman interested in the romance, not a long-term financial obligation.

As she so boldly proclaims in the book: "Love me for my body, no problem. Love me as an escape from Alcatraz, no thanks."

It wasn't until she was writing the memoir in Oaxaca, where she was falling for a "sexy" artist, that she had what she calls her "a-ha moment." She realized she was falling not only in love, but also into a pattern.

She switched gears from writing about a previous imbroglio in France to writing about her Cuban caper, observing that she had devoted her life to romantic adventure when what she really craved is enduring love.

From a woman who's been there, here are rules — in her own words — for conducting a foreign fling.

- Most women are wired to want more. A foreign fling is a lot of fun.
- Enjoy the moment (carpe diem), but be emotionally prepared to let it go.
- Educate yourself. Know the lay

Wanda St. Hillaire is the author of The Cuban Chronicles: A True Tale of Rascals, Rogues and Romance.

Want to meet the author?

The Cuban Chronicles is available at Calgary's Owl's Nest and Garden's Grace plus several Chapters and Indigo stores.

St. Hillaire is holding book signings at several areas in the city over the next couple of weeks.

- Signing, today, Chapters, Macleod Trail Plaza, 1 to 4 p.m.
- Signing, Sunday, Chapters, Spectrum Plaza, 2 to 6:30 p.m.
- Signing, Nov. 15, Chapters, Shawnessey, 1 to 5 p.m.
- Reading, signing wine and cheese night, Terra Cotta Gallery, Black Diamond, Nov. 20, 7 p.m.
- Signing, Nov. 21, Indigo, Crossiron Mills store, 1 to 6 p.m.
- Signing, Indigo, WestHills, Nov. 22, 1 to 5 p.m.

of land and find out about culture mores and rules. For example, in many countries, guests are not allowed in hotel rooms. Be sure to respect the local customs and etiquette.

■ Finding yourself showered with the attentions of an exotic foreign man can be very heady. Be aware there may be a hidden agenda or motive (like an escape from dire circumstances). Also, know what your own underlying agenda is.

■ Trust your intuition. If you feel uncomfortable or any red flags come up, pay attention. Use tact to extricate yourself from the situation.

■ Take precautions and ask questions to avoid issues later on, be it of the heart or your health. Read between the lines.

■ Let someone at home know where you are. Leave an itinerary with contact information or if you don't have one, stay in touch with your whereabouts.

■ If you set the precedent of paying a man's way, you may set yourself up for a "gigolo" situation. Be sure you're not settling for crumbs for the sake of a companion.

■ If you want to carry on a long-distance relationship once you return home, ask yourself first: What are you prepared to do, change (i.e. lifestyle, location), spend, give up. If you are an adventurous soul and open to a new life, go for it.

■ If there is a language barrier, be sure to buy a dictionary to minimize misunderstandings. It's great fun to learn a new language and it will enrich your vacation experience.

■ Be sure to take heed when you hear or read cautionary tales of where you are going — like The Cuban Chronicles

LMONFORTON@THEHERALD.CANWEST.COM

Over 3000 packages under $900!

AIRLINE TICKET CENTRE.CA

7 DAY ALL INCLUSIVES FROM

PUERTO PLATA - New Year Special Puerto Plata Village 3* Dec 30, Jan 6, 13 $897.00 Bahia Principe San Juan 4* Dec 30, Jan 6, 13 $997.00	CANCUN Allegro Playacar 3+* Nov 18, 20, 29, Dec 02 $597.00 Ocean Maya 4* Nov 15, 20, 29 $697.00 Bahia Principe Caba 4+* Nov 18, Dec 02 $697.00
PUERTO VALLARTA Decameron Los Cocos 3* Nov 14, 21, 28, Dec 5, 12 $427.00 Royal Decameron Complex 4* Nov 14, 21, 28, Dec 5, 12 $597.00 Holiday Inn 4* Nov 14, 21, 28, Dec 5, 12 $598.00	VARADERO Club Amigo Tropical 2+* Nov 16, 23, 30 $637.00 Kawama 3+* Nov 16, 23, 30 $627.00
MONTEGO BAY Royal Decameron 3+* Nov 27, Dec 4, 11 $697.00 Holiday Inn Sunspree 4* Nov 27, Dec 4, 11 $797.00	PUNTA CANA Sirenis Tropical 4* Nov 19, 26, Dec 3, 10 $677.00 Grand Oasis Bavaro 4+* Nov 19, 26, Dec 3, 10 $677.00
COSTA RICA "Liberia" Allegro Papagayo 4* Jan 5, 12, 19 $1097.00	PANAMA Royal Decameron 4* Jan 19, Feb 1, 15 $1297.00

Prices does not include taxes and is subject to availability.

NORTHWEST 916 - 16TH AVE NW 403-289-6656	SOUTH 14319 MACLEOD TRAIL 403-215-2355
DOWNTOWN 202 - 7TH AVE SW 403-269-1111	NORTHEAST 3725 MEMORIAL DR SE 403-273-4404

mazatlán

friendly and affordable lifestyle

And much much more...

Join us January 2010 for Mazatlan Week

Your opportunity to find out why each year more Canadians visit, invest and retire at the Pacific Pearl.

The festival promises colourful events, cocktail receptions, and a wide range of activities. Seize the moment and have the time of your life!

Learn more at:
www.mazatlanlifestyle.net
or call us toll free 1-866-320-0887

MAZATLÁN MEXICO TIME TO GO!

KINGFISHER Oceanside Resort & Spa

Winter Getaway Special RATES FROM $3790.00* PER PERSON

2 Nights Accommodation • Restaurant Credit of $100 per person • Spa Credit of $100 per person
One visit to the Pacific Mist Hydroath per person • One complimentary Fitness Class per person
- AND - An additional Complimentary Night's Accommodation • $50 Resort Gift Card • Gift from the Spa

*Based on double occupancy in an ocean view room and valid to March 25th, 2010, excluding December 20th, 2009 to January 2nd, 2010. For arrivals Sunday thru Tuesday only. Complimentary night must be booked at time of original reservation.

DIRECT FLIGHTS TO THE COCOX VALLEY VIA WESTJET 1-800-663-7929 | kingfisherspa.com

SellOffVacations.com
LOWEST PRICE Guaranteed!

Now Hiring

MAZATLAN Riu Emerald Bay $1097 1 week • all inclusive Dec. 21	LAS VEGAS Ballys $195 4nts • air/htl Nov. 29	VARADERO Club Kawama $897 1 week • all inclusive Jan. 09
LOS CABOS Presidente Inter Continental $877 1 week • all inclusive Jan. 11	PUERTO VALLARTA Las Palmas Beach $478 1 week • all inclusive Nov. 14-21	RIVIERA NAYARIT Grand Marival $1068 1 week • all inclusive Dec. 19
CANCUN/MAYAN Ocean Maya $497 1 week • all inclusive Nov. 20	MANZANILLO Los Angeles Locos $678 1 week • all inclusive Jan. 20	PUNTA CANA Carabela Beach $597 1 week • all inclusive Dec. 03

We specialize in Cruises, Weddings and all Group Travel!

Calgary • 403.277.7913
4307 - 130th Ave. SE, Unit 72 (South Trail Crossing Mall)
Mon-Fri: 8am-Midnight • Sat & Sun: 9am-8pm EST. • Toll Free: 1-877-SellOff

We've got your covered! For a limited time Cancellation Protection Insurance is on us! Visit sell-off-vacations.com for details.